

HERE IS A PICTURE that we had taken when we were on vacation in Kauai, Hawaii, at Waimea Canyon lookout. We enjoy reading your magazine very much.

I RECENTLY MADE A Shutterfly book with my Grandpa's letters that Audrey Kletscher Helbling had written about in your spring issue. I'd like to tell you how much I enjoyed the article – it was beautifully done. My mom and I really enjoyed working with Audrey and appreciate all her hard work on this. She did a wonderful job and it'll be a great remembrance. Thanks to you as well.

Editor's note: In our spring issue, we published a feature about two great burger places in southern Minnesota. We invited readers to share their favorite burger spots.

MY GREATEST burger place is Goodfellaz – in either Comfrey or Madelia. The list of burgers includes the Kraut Burger and Western Burger – my favorites. Burger night is Monday when all burgers are half price. Cheesy fries along with the burger makes a scrumptious meal.

I AM NOT a person subject to exaggerating. Thus, I cannot claim to know where the best burgers in the USA are, or even in our great state of Minnesota. I say this because I haven't been to all the burger joints, cafes, and drive-ins.

I can only attest to what I know. Having spent a good part of my life in interior Minnesota, in Becker and Otter Tail counties to be more precise, I have experienced burger moments in virtually every hamburger place in these two counties. And the best burger is at the Lucky Strike Cafe in New York Mills, part of the Mill's Bowling Alley.

Owned and operated by Owen and Dolly Tumburg, they boast not only the finest quality and tasty burgers, but offer it to you in 14 choices of beef and bun with condiments and favorite additions including cheeses, onions, tomatoes, and peppers. From the juicy quarter pounder to the "Cluck N' Moo burger," taste and quality satisfy.

Their claim to fame – though they are not as popular as the golden arches – is their proud announcement that welcomes patrons proclaiming that in less time than the golden arches have flipped burgers and served fries, the Lucky Strike Cafe has served more than 198,000 burgers.

Take a trip to New York Mills, check them out, look over their menu, and if you want, double your order and help Owen and Dolly get up to that quarter million burgers sold. ▶
